

fluid spirit

The patriarchy - the cows and the women

© Danielle H. Jolissaint

Cows are constantly pregnant in order to produce milk continuously, their calves taken away from them right after birth. The milk from these mother cows, which would be for their babies, is stolen and drunk by humans, although humans do not need this milk in any way. There is enough rice-, soya-, almond-, oat milk, etc. The lonesome calves, separated from their mothers, are already murdered by the tenth month of life for the meat industry and also male calves are fattened until the tenth month, in order to be slaughtered for the food of humans. An eternal animal suffering, caused by humans, and from which they feed themselves. Most people are unaware of this dark horror cycle; others repress it daily as they feed on animal products. People pass on this horror from generation to generation without informing their children.

Women have been deprived of power by the Catholic church since the beginning, when all female disciples were banned from the Bible and they were only allowed to take on roles that served the man. Women were and are the ones who give birth to all dignitaries, but they do not have a voice in the Catholic church and other so-called religious communities.

The dictation of anorexia is imposed on women by the media and the fashion industry and immediately after giving birth women have to be thin again, so that no more traces of pregnancy are seen for the society. Women are not abused for food like cows, but they are abused to serve. It is still the case that they do not earn the same wage for the same job. The church, which tolerates only men in high office, abuses women by not giving them any power in the church, the fashion industry sends emaciated, anorexic women on the catwalk, who serve as a false role model for the young girls, so that almost all young women become anorexic. Since young women do not eat enough and unhealthily, they have too little vitality and they become square, edged and merciless as men, instead of sensual, round, compassionate and vigorous, so that they can defend themselves against the dark, so that femininity on our planet could expand. Then, women decide to have surgery to maintain those curves that are beneficial to men. They go on stilts (high heels) to appear taller and more seductive than they really are. These behaviours are caused by the fact that their power of femininity has been lost, so that their bodies are mutilated by operations and they have lost any grounding through high heels and thereby also their feet become deformed (see https://de.wikipedia.org/wiki/High_Heels). They can no longer run away, because they are dependent on the supposedly strong gender through their wanting-to-please, who has made them like this by the male dictates. In reality, men are afraid of the natural strength of the woman, who is the one who gives birth to life. The patriarchate, with cunning and suspicion, keeps the naturally strong women and the naturally strong cows weak, undemanding and dependent by depriving them of their strength through lies, intimidation and deprivation of power.

Women who want to please society try to do all this somehow, by spending a lifetime to please the man and using all their strength to follow that dictation in the hope of getting hold of the best, strongest man. Women want to feel that they themselves and their brood are protected and loved by the man, because they are convinced in their innermost and most hidden angle and through all the wrong adaptation, that without a man, they would not be able to live happily in this society. But they would never admit this; they prefer to remain in the illusion that everything is fine, only to be able to repress this immense pain, which, if felt, would lead to a change. In their unconscious and partially conscious feeling of inferiority towards men, they live with wrong instead of natural pride.

fluid spirit

Unfortunately, this does not work with men, because most women are so angry at heart at men as they had to move away from nature to such a great extent to please them, that they now, after they finally have found a husband, secretly and sometimes openly rebel against and oppose him.

Because women are constantly busy with how much or how little they are allowed to eat, they lose strength; they lose their love of life and high spirits and accordingly their desire for sexuality. This, in turn, causes men to engage in pornography and brothels, which in turn, causes that women think they have to pretend that they like this perverse sexuality in order to keep the man, and that, in turn, causes women, anorexic and with their stilts, in which they lose their grounding, to meet men with seductive power. Because of all the humiliations of their femininity, women no longer enjoy sexuality, because they have realised that they only serve for service at all levels, and they compensate for this with ambition and false power, seduction and sexual refusal, in order to maintain power over men so that the gender struggle is sustained and the economy, ultimately, is the only lover of the patriarchy who profits from it. Unhappy and weak people are known to try to buy the unattainable happiness with vicarious satisfaction and this will fuel the economy. And when people get ill because of all this, the pharmaceutical industry benefits from it and the costs of health care are exploding.

The humiliated mothers do everything in their power to urge their children to become ambitious, so that they may become more powerful than themselves. Instead of love, negative power is passed on among humans, so that love on earth dwindles rapidly, as does the not-being-allowed-to expand-female-kind, which is dying on our earth, like nature, which is becoming ever leaner through the patriarchy of exploitation instead of female nurturing and caring and the expanding of the female, which is curtailed on all levels of being. This is the terribly sad truth about patriarchy, the spread of exploitation and anorexia, and how joy of life and zest for life of the female are murdered with this. Mothers pass it on to their daughters and so we are in a world full of anorexic, hard, edged women who correspond increasingly more to masculinity than femininity. This ultimately makes men suffer as well.

The earth desperately needs the power of feminine energy so that nature and thus the source of life of humans and animals cannot be destroyed completely and can be rebuilt on our wonderful earth.

So it is essential that we women become aware again of our natural power, of receiving, giving birth, protecting and expanding, and defend ourselves healthy and powerful against the dark by rebelling intelligently against the dark, against the masculinization of the feminine, so that nature will get a chance again to heal.

All women, by all means, must find their way back to their creative femininity, as it arose from the creation. It does not mean that each of us women have to give birth to children but to find back to our maternal qualities, which were given to all of us by the creation. Only the feminine can save the earth, but the feminine can hardly be found on our planet today. The feminine that protects, nurses, cares, grows and expands.

fluid spirit

Women! - become aware of how your sisters, the cows, are being treated, stand up, refuse to continue to eat your sisters and brothers, and stand up again for and return to your femininity, the power of giving birth, of caring, of nurturing and of expanding; and fight against the destructive power of darkness. Resist the darkness until men will respect you again for what you are. Become aware that you have been abused and exploited by patriarchy like all the cows and animals on our wonderful abused earth, which is slowly but surely perishing if nothing changes immediately. Women! - your strength and love are killed just as all cows are killed with their calves. Please wake up and become aware of the terribly sad truth, so that we can begin to defend ourselves against the dark which now has been recognised and has become aware.

With deepest gratitude for your support, I cordially greet all beings of this world

Danielle H. Jolissaint

21 May 2019/dj